

Job Opening
- Chief Technology Officer

March 2, 2016

Come join us in solving the most valuable problems for our multimedia future.

Digital ReLab is reimagining the entire digital asset landscape and has built the first ever multi-media platform positioned for the future demands of an emerging digital ecosystem. Born in a recording studio to solve the day-to-day workflow and transcoding challenges, our platform, Starchive, has evolved to be the only platform in a new class of utilities designed for a multi-media and virtual-reality future.

For the last four years, we have honed the platform with the Bob Dylan Music Company building the very first comprehensive digital archive of Bob Dylan's life and work. We have now turned this platform into a SaaS subscription service for other artists, symphony orchestras, creative agencies, museums, and important archives the world over.

We are recruiting a Chief Technology Officer who has experience leading teams in rapid development and the temperament for an emerging and expanding company. We need a technology leader with the ability to innovate and build a tech team with a philosophy of servant leadership. A leader with humility and the business savvy to marry customer-led design with visionary development. It is critical that you are a strong culture fit and ready to participate in a fast-paced race to claiming a significant portion of a market that will be worth $60B by 2020.
